

THE YEAR OF NOBODY'S LORD

Your sky's a graveyard highway.
Through shattered glass two moons went up in flames.
Old worlds are crumbling faster than the rain.
You give each other excellent excuse
To guarantee the rest of us lose.
You stand back and send other men to die.
The groaning earth won't hold enough of your kind.
You've unlocked the cellar where the nightmares are stored.
Time for the Year of Nobody's Lord.
I said it's time for the Year of Nobody's Lord.

Lies to force to fear to more lies
Do you smile when you're alone
Or think of those who are never coming home?
And the pleadings of a child's handwritten scrawl
Don't show up on your radar screen at all.
If the one you claim to serve could hear you speak
He'd say, "Go follow someone else, not me."
Now mercy's just a fool's errand, twice underscored
Ring in the Year of Nobody's Lord.
Yes, bring on the Year of Nobody's Lord.

I've seen too much and lived too long.
You've crossed the line together, unconcerned.
What you really want is fire to see things burn.
Last man standing get the lights
And wave that bloody flag one more time.
You say things have changed. I'm not so sure.
He'll take you down with his planes when you're through with yours,
Now everybody pays what no one can afford.
Welcome to the Year of Nobody's Lord.
I said, welcome to the Year of Nobody's Lord.

Copyright ©2011, Garrett Sawyer